Tools to Help Navigate Life's Terrain[®]

The Land of... Children's Books[®] are so much more than just fun stories to read. These important life lessons provide tools to help your students navigate life's terrain.

Inviting author Katie Mullaly to your school is about so much more than just reading a fun book. Your students, teachers, and staff will leave with ways to incorporate the books, and their important messages into their lives.

With a full series to choose from, and different books better suited to different grades, we offer an experience appropriate for all age ranges - from kindergarten through high school. Please see descriptions of our books on the other side.

We have created teacher packets with reminders and worksheets of each journey to give to your students after the presentation. This way, you can easily continue the conversation about these important topics. We also have downloadable posters for your classrooms that will help remind everyone of the journey.

Although the books are categorized for ages 5 and up, the topics they cover are important to all ages. No matter your age group, audience members will certainly gain something from the readings. In addition, if you have a class that is discussing publishing, writing, poetry or another topic that is in alignment with the books, bring Katie in to talk with them. Your students could gain so much.
